

Dr. David McGlennon

Vice Provost, Research Administration and University Partnerships

New York University

Abu Dhabi, UAE

David McGlennon, is NYU Abu Dhabi's Vice Provost of Research Administration and University Partnerships. As such, he leads the efforts of NYUAD to develop its research administration and infrastructure, and supports the University in developing strategic partnerships and collaborations with government, industry, and the community in ways that will enhance NYUAD's research, academic, and student programs. He joined the University after a decade of senior leadership positions in research and outreach in higher education and government in the UAE. McGlennon is an environmental scientist specializing in marine and fisheries science, fisheries biology, and fisheries management and policy. Prior to his move to the UAE, he had 20 years of experience in all aspects of fisheries management, science, and policy at the South Australian Research and Development Institute in Adelaide, Australia. He has written more than 36 scientific and technical papers and received more than AUD 4 million in research grants.