

Ms. Kaye Krause-Whiteing

Head of Marketing & Communications

Petrofac – Engineering, Construction, Operations & Maintenance Division

Over 25 years' corporate experience in the private sector, the majority being with publicly listed industrial service companies. The last 12 years to date have been with international service provider Petrofac, as head of marketing and communications for its Engineering, Construction, Operations and Maintenance Division. Petrofac, is the largest UK listed oil field services provider by market capitalisation. Positions undertaken during Kaye's career to date have been in the fields of marketing and business development, communications, corporate responsibility, external affairs, operations management, human resources management and business analysis. With a strong social conscience Petrofac always seeks to achieve accord between its business and operational objectives and the needs and impacts of its activities upon the communities in which it operates and the natural environment. This includes investing in education and in future generations of engineers for the oil and gas industry.