

Saïd Ibrahimi

CEO, Casablanca Finance City, Morocco

Saïd Ibrahimi, 57 years old, is an engineer alumni of « Ecole Centrale de Paris ». He holds a graduate diploma of industrial engineering. He presently is the CEO of the Moroccan Financial Board.

Mr. Ibrahimi began his professional career in France where he entered the banking system as of 1986 bearing different operational responsibilities in the Group BNP Paribas. He was appointed General Director of the Moroccan Bank for Africa and the Middle East in September 1995. His late Majesty King Hassan the 2nd appointed him in September 1997 as General Director of the “Caisse Nationale de Crédit Agricole”. He successfully drove an important institutional and financial reform (changing the state bank into a commercial bank).

In September 2003, His Majesty King Mohamed the 6th appointed him as Treasurer of the Kingdom. He ran a modernization plan aiming to improve the quality and efficiency of the institution’s services. He also was in charge of the sensitive reform project of public spending control which he successfully achieved by merging heavy and important administrations.

In April 2010, His Majesty King Mohamed the 6th appointed him as Chief Executive of the Moroccan Financial Board, the body in charge of the institutional promotion and the overall management program of the Casablanca Finance City project.

Mr. Ibrahimi is a Member of the Board of Trustees of the Royal Association for Solidarity. He was President of the International Association of Treasury Services and President of the Ecole Centrale alumni association. He had been vice-president of the Professional Association of Moroccan Banks until 2003.
